

UC-NRLF

$B 27 849

YC 14678

GIFT OF

985
E-599
W

THE FIGHTING HOLSTEIN BULL

(A Parable)

Good old Ben Jones raised grain and wool,
Across the road lived William Brown
Who kept a fighting Holstein bull,
A terror to tear fences down.

One day Bill Brown unbarred his bull
And stable doors he opened wide;
Then cracked his whip, just like a fool,
Upon that onery beast's hide.

Out shot the bull, took post and gate
Of the corral upon his horns.
Jones saw him come and pulled his freight,
Made tracks for home to get his sons.

When he reached home said he to all
His boys that gathered 'round,
"The Holstein bull has left his stall, Go kill him ere he tramps our ground."

Said John, the eldest, "Dad," 'taint right,
"To send us boys to other lands,
"If it comes here why then we'll fight.
John won and Jones threw up his hands.

So the bull he had the freedom
Of all the road, and wild did run
Along Jones' fence, there made things hum,
While Bill looked on and thought it fun.

That bull, he smashed, in just a week,
A dozen rigs, killed many sheep,
And lambs galore. What made Jones sick
Was, none would put that brute to sleep.

Now, when no living thing would come,
Or could be seen along that road,
John saw the bull a-going some,
Tearing the fence down, board by board.

John up and fires, but his shot went wild.
He cussed, he turned and ran away.
Both he and bull raced 'cross the field,
Straight for the kitchen door, and say,

The whole darn family saw that race,
But none would come to shoo the Bull.
Said Jones, "John's coming to our place
To fight, according to his rule."

"Here, you women folks, take the kids,
"Hike for the barn, the boys and I
"Will do some glorious warlike deeds;
"By gosh, today that bull'll die."

They let John in and shut the door,
Then Jones, he took the matter cool,
Firm-footed on the kitchen floor,
Awaited William's Holstein bull.

ash;
wall,
dash.
l.

m.

ume.

s fist,

ast!"

ong

l.

l.

id,

;

d ense."

;

id,

;

ad,

ost.

'm boss;

id:

l, id.

ak you,

—Gus L. Goethals,

GIFT C

EX LIBRI

RULED

985 held in
E-590
W

ruled on their weeks followed Starasd team, w from a claim to call e game lengthy rd base

Oakland
l. The with the the dee gave added eclared
e book rfeited calls a sus-

Subscribe for Pittsburg Post.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. McCullough of Oroville, spent Christmas at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Rouner in this city. Mrs. McCullough is a daughter of Mrs. Rouner's.

Claude Rouner, who is an apprentice machinist in the shops at Lodi, California, was here for Christmas. Claude will complete his apprenticeship within the next year.

Chief of Police Westover went to San Francisco Wednesday to identify to account Tom Kane, a former bartender at the Pittsburg Inn, who was charged with having obtained money under false pretenses in this city. It is said that Kane cashed a worthless check for $50, at a Greek cafe on Second street.

That the New happy for all is

Grocery.

Linsche

Telephone 33-W

Soon came an awful jar and crash;
The bull broke through the kitchen wall,
Knocked four men down, and made a dash.
Through every room and every hall.

Though each man had a hickory stick,
No two fought in the self-same room.
So Bill's bull he had a picnic,
As household goods threw up the flume.

Jones called for a consultation.
"Boys," said he, as he clenched his fist,
"Fall in line, in massed formation,
"We'll fight as one and get that beast!"

When it met four men, good and strong
He turned and in the pantry rushed.
The floor gave way the bull headlong
Down in the concrete cellar crashed.

Just then Pete Olson, Bill's hired man,
Came up to have a parley vous.
He held in hand a spick and span
New cotton rope and halter, too.

"Gude marning, Meester Yones," he said,
"I ban sent here by Meester Brown;
"Dos fence he feex; I tank he paid.
"Nu for his bool I ban coom down."

"I," Jones replied, "made up my mind
"To get along without a fence;
"I'll tear down Bill's offensive kind,
"Then won't need none for my defense."

"But first I'll kill and cook the bull.
"Pete," you tell Bill what I tell you;
"If he follows the Golden Rule
"He can come to the barbecue."

We know Ben Jones meant all he said,
For he yanked up the hitching post,
Then whacked the bull across the head,
And William's bull gave up the ghost.

"Burn up the house," yelled Jones, "I'm boss;
"I'll leave no salvage for rebate,
"I'll make Bill pay a total loss;
"His bull clause I repudiate."

When Pete got back he told Bill all.
Bill took the rope from Peter's hand;
Clumb up a tree, good, strong and tall,
Jumped off, but never hit the ground.

Bill did a first-class job, you bet.
Pete said, "Dar rope ban strong, tank you,
"It hurts me gude, already yet,
"I go see Yones' barbecue."

—Gus L. Goethals,

Clayton, Cal., December 23, 1917.

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2007 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

SOMEWHERE

Somewhere in France they're putting up
A three ring circus tent.

Cancelled Transcript, Dec. 27, 1917

THE PACIFIST

Ere they used the poisonous shell
It had been said that "War is hell,"
Yet William was more than willing
For the foulest ways of killing.
He, for a peaceful land did crave;
Land of the bravest of the brave,
There hurled mad Huns through Belgium's Gate,
And won the World's undying hate.
Now shunned by all whom he defied,
Conscience stricken and terrified,
He tries to stem his homing Huns
Who flee from our avenging guns.
He proffers us the olive branch
While planning to defraud the French.
But where's the fool would trust a Hun
Whilst he retains a trench or gun?
He's here, he's there, most everywhere,
Pro-German Pacifist for fair,
That sulks when Kaiser meets defeat
And smiles when Berlin says we're beat.
One lives next door to you, if not,
Across your street you'll find a lot.
So sail right in and soak the Mutts
That smile—for Kaiser—as he struts.

Gus L. Goethals, Clayton, Dec. 14th, 1917

Somehow before next rain,
They'll surely catch and cage, to show
One animal that's all.

Somewhere along the Rhine he prowls,
That beast we call the Hun,
The Lion, Eagle and the Wolf
Now has him on the run.

Somewhere they'll use another cage,
Inside the tented show,
For the double headed Eagle
That failed to reach the Po.

a
Somewhere in France some sight you'll see
When starts the Grand Parade,
Sometime Our Eagle leaves his perch
For Berlin unafraid.

—Gus L. Goethals, Feb. 4, 1918.

Pittsburg Pa.

the place bearing a large placard stating the dying wish of Ivan Walesoff.

The undertakers objected to this way of disposing of the body, and informed the Russians of the law, but the men and women were obdurate. A son of Ivan Walesoff argued with the undertaker that he desired to carry out the last wishes of his father that the body be given to the hogs after the funeral. The aid of Assistant District Attorney Harry Davids was called.

The argument was ended by the starting of a weird chant by the Russians, in which men, women and children joined. While they were chanting the death song the undertaker sent for Assistant District Attorney Davids, who told them the law, but was met with the reply there is no such law in the Bible. Davids referred to the tomb of Moses, and was met with the argument the Russians were not guided by the Old Testament, and then the lawyer quoted from the New Testament, and his was rejected.

Finally an interpreter was found, who explained the situation to both sides. Two men in white, the sons of Ivan Walesoff, would not listen.

Finally one Russian saw the light and said he would give $5 to buy a plot in the cemetery. Davids also saw the light, and through the interpreter pleaded for more money, and finally the amount was raised. The procession to the grave was formed, led by a son who bore the big canvas placard, stating the man was 3 years old and had been a vegetarian twenty-five years, advising his

Johns.

Austro mountain effort D line bet Pertica that onl did the tain it.
resulted all day.

Another have be bomb p munition front fr agents in prisoner 11g, 52 y
was in R to have von Rin torious C States, w ing an i ish stea

Washin qualified aviation can seek the rece untary e has been balloonist upon pas nearest which wi tions are tion boar which th
No aërial accepted, non-flying

SOMEWHERE

Somewhere in France they're putting up
A three ring circus tent.
The Ticket Agents are around
And seats are now for rent.

Somewhere in dear old U. S. A.
'Twas planned to give that Show,
Elsewhere Pro-German Mutts all said
"U-Boats won't let you go."

Somewhere get tickets for that Show,
Buy from the Red Cross Man,
And buy one stamped Y. M. C. A.
Take two, take all you can.

Somewhere along the fighting front,
Within that Yankee Show,
They'll treat you to a royal time;
You'll see Huns on the go.

Somewhere on center pole you'll see
The Eagle we've let go.
Inside the tent the ringmaster,
Jack Pershing, runs our show.

Somewhere in No Man's Land, our boys,
Whirl 'round the tireless loop.
For clown they have a silly Prince,
A pure bred Nincompoop.

Somewhere, nowhere elsewhere they say
All animals are loose.
The Lion, Wolf and Kangaroo
Play with the young Cayuse.

Somewhere the Bear now hibernates,
When freed he left the ring,
We'll let him slumber all he wants,
For he'll come back next spring.

Somewhere, we can't tell where just now,
Sometime before next fall,
They'll surely catch and cage, to show
One animal that's all.

Somewhere along the Rhine he prowls,
That beast we call the Hun,
The Lion, Eagle and the Wolf
Now has him on the run.

Somewhere they'll use another cage,
Inside the tented show,
For the double headed Eagle
That failed to reach the Po.

Somewhere in France some sight you'll see
When starts the Grand Parade,
Sometime Our Eagle leaves his perch
For Berlin unafraid.

—Gus L. Goethals, Feb. 4, 1918.

Pittsburg Post
Feb. 9, 1918

The Witches of Bielefeld
War Poems and Notes

By GUS L. GOETHALS

CLAYTON, CALIFORNIA
SEPTEMBER, 1917

D 526

12

G 58

1917

MAN

The Witches of Bielefeld
War Poems and Notes

By GUS L. GOETHALS

CLAYTON, CALIFORNIA
SEPTEMBER, 1917

UNIV. OF CALIFORNIA

Copyright, 1917:
By GUS L. GOETHALS

70 VNU
ALBION, LA.

CHAS. E. GALACRA, VICE PRESIDENT

W. J. MACKAY, SECRETARY

CASH CAPITAL $2,500,000.00

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT
 150 SANSOME ST.
 SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA
 GEO. W. DORNIN, MANAGER
 JOHN C. DORNIN, ASST. MGR

GUS L. GOETHALS
 SOLE AGENT

WOODROW WILSON
President of the United States

Foreword

Since the fateful days of August, 1914, when the German Emperor turned loose his horde of murdering Huns upon the soil of Belgium, I have written several articles pertaining to the present war, which were published in the Martinez Gazette, Pittsburg Post and the Concord Transcript, of Contra Costa County California. And having been importuned to have those articles in booklet form, I agreed to the solicitations of my friends. So to those verses heretofore published I have added "The Witches of Bielefeld," and an appendix of notes. The Witches of Bielefeld was written to emphasize the historical fact that no invader has ever succeeded. If the old adage that "History repeats itself" continues to rule, which in the case of Kaiser Wilhelm II, I firmly believe will so continue, then we, and our Allies, need have no fear of the ultimate results of the gigantic struggle.

Since the day of the battle of the Marne, in the forepart of September, 1914, I have always maintained that the Germans were doomed. For those Germans who still cherish the hope of a Teutonic victory I have a certain degree of sympathy, but must say this, and say it in their own language, "Gottes Muehle geht langsam aber die mahlt fein," and they should bear in mind that the Allies are firmly united, hopeful and sanguine of a victory which in the end will prove to be for a better and a regenerated Germany. Moreover, Time is not of the essence of their contract, as it was with the plans of the Kaiser's general staff, when on their march to Paris. Their time piece proved to finely and delicately made—a grain of sand stopped it—that grain of sand was BELGIUM.

GUS L. GOETHALS

Clayton, California
September 1, 1917

Bryan Will Resign

Oh, say, William Jennings Bryan,
The Dogs of War are loose;
Your Dove of Peace has flown the coop—
Your office you may lose.

You said you would not take that job
If you thought we'd have a war,
While drawing that twelve thousand per
From Uncle Sam's pay car.

So if you meant just what you said
You'll never, never sign
A document that smacks of war,
For surely you'll resign.

Let Woodrow get a better man,
A man who'll clear the deck
Of lectures from the ship of state,
And take Chapultepec.

April 21st, 1914.

The War From A. to Z.

As Albert, at Antwerp awaited Albion's army
Bold Bavarians battered Belgium's battlements, Ceaselessly cannonading, constantly concrete crumbled,
Dover's denizens dismayed declared decampment,
Effectively embarks elusively enters Europe,
Fiercely fighting France's foresworn foe, firm footed,
Gruesome, gory ground gains grim German grenadiers.
"Hock, hip hurrah!" his holy Highness hooted
Inflexible Imperialist—insatiable invador.
Justly Jehovah judges jesting jumping jacks,
Kings, Kadis, Kerns—kirk kneeling knaves—keep killing kindred.
Liege, Luxemburg, Louvain low living lacks.
Martial men meet men, Mordkessel marks meandering
Marne,
Napoleon's Nemesis, now nerved no Nelson Needs.
Onward Orleans, Odessa, Oporto, Ottawa,
Protecting Paris, persuing Prussians precede.
Quatrebras quickly quieted Quixotic quarrels,
Russia, remembering, rushes regiments 'round,
So, surely seeking Slavonic sway,
Thru Tripoly Teutons tersely Turkey tempted.
Unum universal Usufruct Uhlans undertakes.
Verisimilous Varus victory ventured.
World wonders why will warring Wilhelm worship
Xerxes, Xebecs, Xerophim, Xystarch xeloidine.
Ypres' Yarmouth's yieldless yeomanry.
Zealously Zwarte Zeppelins Zig-zags.

January 10th, 1915.

The Flag of Victory

TO THE HUNAMERICANS

How long, oh Huns, will you abuse
The patience of your host;
When will ye cease to interfere
With Patriots at their posts?

By ways as foul as submarines,
With spying periscope!
You try to sink our Ship of State;
Strike all within your scope.

You left your country joyfully,
Here welcomed to our land,
The land you swore you would uphold—
Took oath you would defend.

That mark on Cain, was but a scratch
To yours of infamy.
For all your crimes you have prefaced
By that of perjury.

Because our sons are now in France
Our thoughts run 'cross the sea;
So please don't monkey with our switch,
Or you'll hang to a tree.

Gus L. Goethals,
Clayton, Cal., Nov. 17, 1917.

REMARKABLE CAMPAIGN

A Few Scraps of Paper

Bold Barons met King John at Runnymede,
There forced the Charter in his hand

He signed indeed

—For England's need—

"A Scrap of Paper" to rule the land.

Martin Luther, with Holy Writ in hand,
Indulgences boldly hurled

From his native land

And did defend

"A Scrap of Paper" 'gainst the world.

A band of patriots met in Fanueil Hall,
There did declare for Liberty,

At their Country's call

They signed, for all,

"A Scrap of Paper," to be Free.

And for the best—the Union to sustain—

Abraham Lincoln gave the decree,

"In this Domain

No slaves retain"—

"A Scrap of Paper" set them free.

"Free tolls for our ships" so Congress declared

Ungrudgingly they did retract

When Wilson said,

As his Message read,

"'A Scrap of Paper' you must respect."

January 24th, 1915.

The Writing on the Wall

The German Staff had planned it fine
To cross the Belgium neutral line,
 On August Fourth
 They sallied forth,
While singing the "Wacht am Rhine".
And they crossed with flying colors,
For von Emmech had his orders,
 "Without delay
 'To hack his way'
Through Belgium and on to Paris".
There the Kaiser—such was his boast—
Said he'd eat his quail on toast,
 And named the day
 He'd have his way,
In six weeks he'd meet Mine Host.
But came one fair September morn,
Close to the winding river Marne,
 There old von Kluck
 Was thunder struck—
Of victory he was shorn.
Then at Verdun, the butchers bill —Already high—rose higher still;
 There the Crown Prince
 Made Germans wince,
For Frenchmen had learned the way to kill.

Yet he made some gains—here a trench,
And there some cannon from the French—
 But he observes
 That his reserves
Are all used up, both root and branch.

Now they fight—not to free the sea—
Nor yet for weal of Germany—
 To save the crown
 For a young clown,
Which would be lost—with soldiers free.

The day of reckoning now draws near,
The “Writing on the Wall” is clear—
 It is “REPUBLIC”
 Not “Dynastic”
That is the Kaiser’s mortal fear.

April 10th, 1916.

With Germany, If--

Old Kaiser Wilhelm, he bellowed and roared,
I'll carve a place in the Sun with my Sword,
I, the Anointed—
By God appointed,
The scourge of man, as Etzel of old.

His roar awoke the sleeping Russian bear,
And roused the British Lion from its lair;
The Eagle of France
Flew to its lance,
While brave Belgians called his bluff of hot air.

They're willing now to give him all of the sun,
But off of the earth he must go with his son,
And we'll get along
With Germans as long
As they're free from the sway of a Hun.

April 24th, 1916

The Light That Shown Around the World

HEED NOT HIS CALL

—G—

We'll make the Desolater desolate,
Of victory he'll cease to prate;
That Arbiter of small nation's fate,
Now for his own does supplicate.

Hear not his cry for Peace, for 'tis the knell
Of liberty and false as hell;
But heed the wail—from Lusitania's shell
Of murdered ones his Huns did fell.

'Tis time to choose between Autocracy
Under that brute of Germany
And our President, with Democracy
Forever free from Tyranny.

The world has chosen he, Woodrow Wilson,
Who can and will make peace, oh
Hun;
And ere the buck you shall pass to your son
You'll meet his Yankee Sons of a Gun.

GUS L. GOETHALS,
Clayton, Nov. 14th, 1917.

Cuts and Crossings in the History of the World

Alexander the Great cuts the Gordian knot and becomes the Conqueror of the world.

Julius Caesar crosses the Rubicon and Rome becomes the mistress of the world.

The Spanish Armada crosses the English Channell and England becomes the mistress of the Sea.

Washington crosses the Delaware and the United States becomes the Free Land for all the world.

Woodrow Wilson cuts and crosses the path of William the Hun and we become the guardian for the Freedom of the Sea.

February 8th, 1917.

J. B. German's Fright

A mighty hunter, of small game,
Unfurled the Prussian flag—
With poison, guns and various traps
Set out to fill his B A G.

His High Command, the General Staff,
Had given him their highest Tip,
"We'll win ere England strikes a blow",
And Billy said then let 'er R I P.

All lawful rules they cast aside,
As wallow hogs in bloody mire;
They marched through the best preserves
Which then and there they set on F I R E.

Then gayly started on their trip,
Boasting of their victory,
But the English, French and Irish
Gave them no chance to see P A R I S.

So, to heaven he bawled command,
Gott strafe England she did most harm,
She is still defending Belgium
From our strong and bloody A R M.

"Verdun?" too soon the answer came,
It made the Allies sure they'll win
And on the Somme they're going some,
And the going is to B E R L I N.

The German crown is marked, "For Sale",
So there are three that have the T A G,
Three crowned heads fear people's vengeance
Three guilty of a fighting J A G.

Now the Kaiser prays to heaven:
"Please Got, don't let England strafe Me
As she did old Bonaparte,
Don't let her banish me to S E A."

Oct. 26, 1916

Month of April is Month of War
Declarations in U. S.

Says Uncle Sam to Kaiser William:
"I'm tired of writing notes,
Now going to spend a Billion
To hunt and sink U Boats.

"You've April fooled me twice to date
And have one more a coming,
'Cause on a Sunday I surely hate
To start and go a gunning,

"Do your worst Mister Hohenzollern,
Your last Fool's Day is near,
Full well you know 'Du hast verlohren'
Monday from me you'll hear,

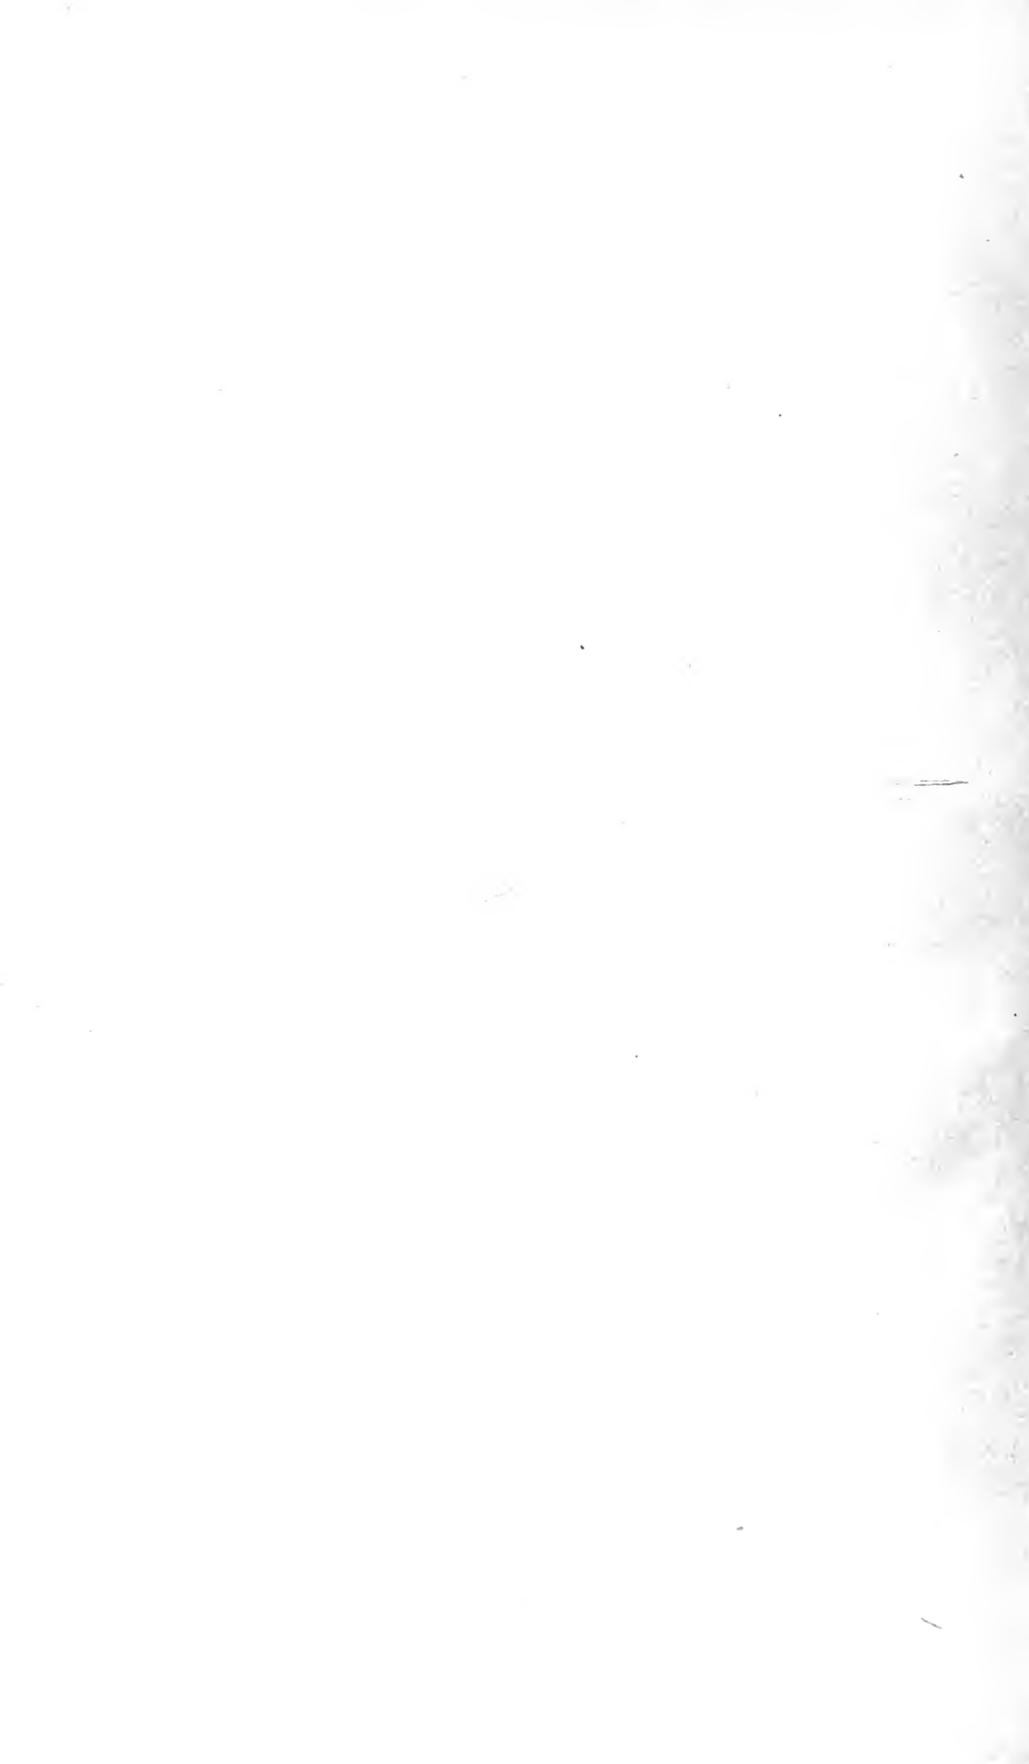

"'T wont help you much to hide behind
The Hiddenburglars' Line;
By Heck its good to make your kind
Their Abdication sign,

"You know my lucky Month is April—
Look up my list of Scraps;
'Fore I get through with you, dear Bill,
You'll pack your royal traps."

March 27th, 1917.

The Narrow Gateway

Ere they used the poisonous shell
It had been said that " War is Hell",
Yet Wilhelm was more than willing
For the foulest ways of killing.

~~... and swatt the Matts - 50, said right in and~~
That smiles, for Kaiser, as he struts.
~~... sound the matts~~

Edgar in Gethals

London Dec 12th 1917

THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

COUNTY OF ...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

...

All Hail the Volunteers

From 'Frisco Bay to Washington
Is heard the Warlike song:
"We are with you, Woodrow Wilson,
A Hundred Million strong."

From pole to pole the echo comes,
Throughout the night and day:
"We're 'gainst the Hohenzollerns,
And we'll back the U. S. A."

Above the Cannon's roar is heard
The cry of vanquished Huns:
"We yield to you Brave Kamarad,
So take our useless Guns."

The English Tommy—the French Poilu
Press onward just the same:
"No time," they shout, "to tend to you—We're after bigger game."

May 15, 1917

Must Get Busy

Behold the self-appointed peace maker,
Who butts in, on the scrap across the pond.

He's a faker,
Of a Quaker,

He'd free burglars without bond.

He wants to stop, with lamentation,
Straffing of "Deutschland ober alles",
For spoilation
Of small nation,
Due the Germans from the Allies.

He'd let the Prussian keep his hand and foot
'Pon every inch of Belgian soil,
And doesn't care a hoot
'Bout stolen loot,
But fears the jingle of a foil.

He'd meekly let invaders fire his home,
He was not raised to be a soldier boy,
His spinal column
A streak of chrome
Of yellow color without alloy.

No English Tommy, no French Poilu
Now on the Somme or at Verdun,
Invited you
Or asked you to Make peace before their job is done.

If you mean business you'll get busy,
For you'll have to fight to stop that fight,
 Don't be a Sissy,
 Don't talk silly,
Jump in the ring and prove you're right.

Be first in war and first in peace and then
You will be first in the hearts of all
 Your countrymen
 As Washington,
Who bravely answered a fighting call.

December 8th, 1916.

“Made in Germany”

That “Hack our way through Belgium plan,”
—World’s greatest infamy,
Against all law of God and Man—
Was “Made in Germany.”

The Zeppelin—with Boches wild—
Dropping bombs most savagely,
To kill a woman or a child,
Was “Made in Germany.”

The Submarine, by Kaiser sent,
To sink all ships at sea,—
No warning gives—on murder bent,
Were “Made in Germany.”

That devilish death dealing Gas,
Used with most fiendish glee—
Which for foul murder heads the class—
Is “Made in Germany.”

Like wild beasts, Huns now madly spring
Against all humanity,
And boast that all death dealing things
Are “Made in Germany.”

The Kaiser soon will leave Berlin,
To get new deviltry,
He’ll sure find some, when he goes in Hell, “Made in Germany.”

A Great Combination

On to Berlin

The Eastern Line is Wabbling to the West,
By Russian bayonet charges.

The Western Line in fear—is running East,
From British and French Barrages.

No more does Kaiser William strut about
The East or Western battle line,
He is too busy picking out a route
To run ere Roosevelt sees the Rhine.

For when those lines shall mingle into one
Our Yankee boys will then fall in,
In spite of all or any German Von,
They'll form the Bee Line to Berlin.

With Old Glory they'll get there sure as fate,
If those von Mutts keep up that fight;
Then like rats—from the German ship of State—

All the pirates will take flight.

And bitterly the Kaiser will complain:

'Gainst him who wielded the "Big Stick,"
"It's your fault, Teddy, that I raised Cain,
You said the whole world I could lick."

"Sure Bill," Teddy will reply, "I said that,
But did'nt want to cross your son,
Nor hurt your feelings so I left this out
"ABER NIT—The spot I live on."

May 10, 1917

The Kaiser's Lament

I organized the Plunderbund,
And Europe painted Red,
They now call us the Blunderbund—
Blame Me for all the dead.

ME! The Chief and the high Galoot
Of the Germanic Mutts,
That soon from me will get the Boot
For all are going 'Nuts'.

They told me England was a runt
And would not play the cards,
But Brittons were the first to hunt
And kill my Prussian Guards—

Said that in France my Clownish Son,
Fair Paris would surely take,
But soon those polius made them run—
Their plans turned out a fake.

They bet me Yankees would not dare
Fight our murdering Band,
But hell, they're at it now, for fair,
To make us all disband.

Now, I'll never wear upon my coat
"Kaiser Wilhelm the Great."
They'll write it plain: "The Billy Goat,"
For Wilson means that straight.

Before the Peoples' Goat I'll be I'll take the drummers Route—
I'll go to old Milwaukee
And peddle sauerkraut."

May 15, 1917

Hay Off That I. O. U.

Oh! Soldier Boy, of you we're proud,
For you we'll daily pray,
For a safe return to your fireside
In the good old U. S. A.

God help you to fight the U-boats
For the "Freedom of the Sea,"
To make it safe for all that floats,
With Neutrals F. O. B.

At Valley Forge, your father's chance
To win looked rather blue;
When Washington appealed to France,
The French came P. D. Q.

Now that the Frenchmen need our aid,
Uncle Sam depends on YOU
To go and prove you're not afraid
To pay off that I. O. U.

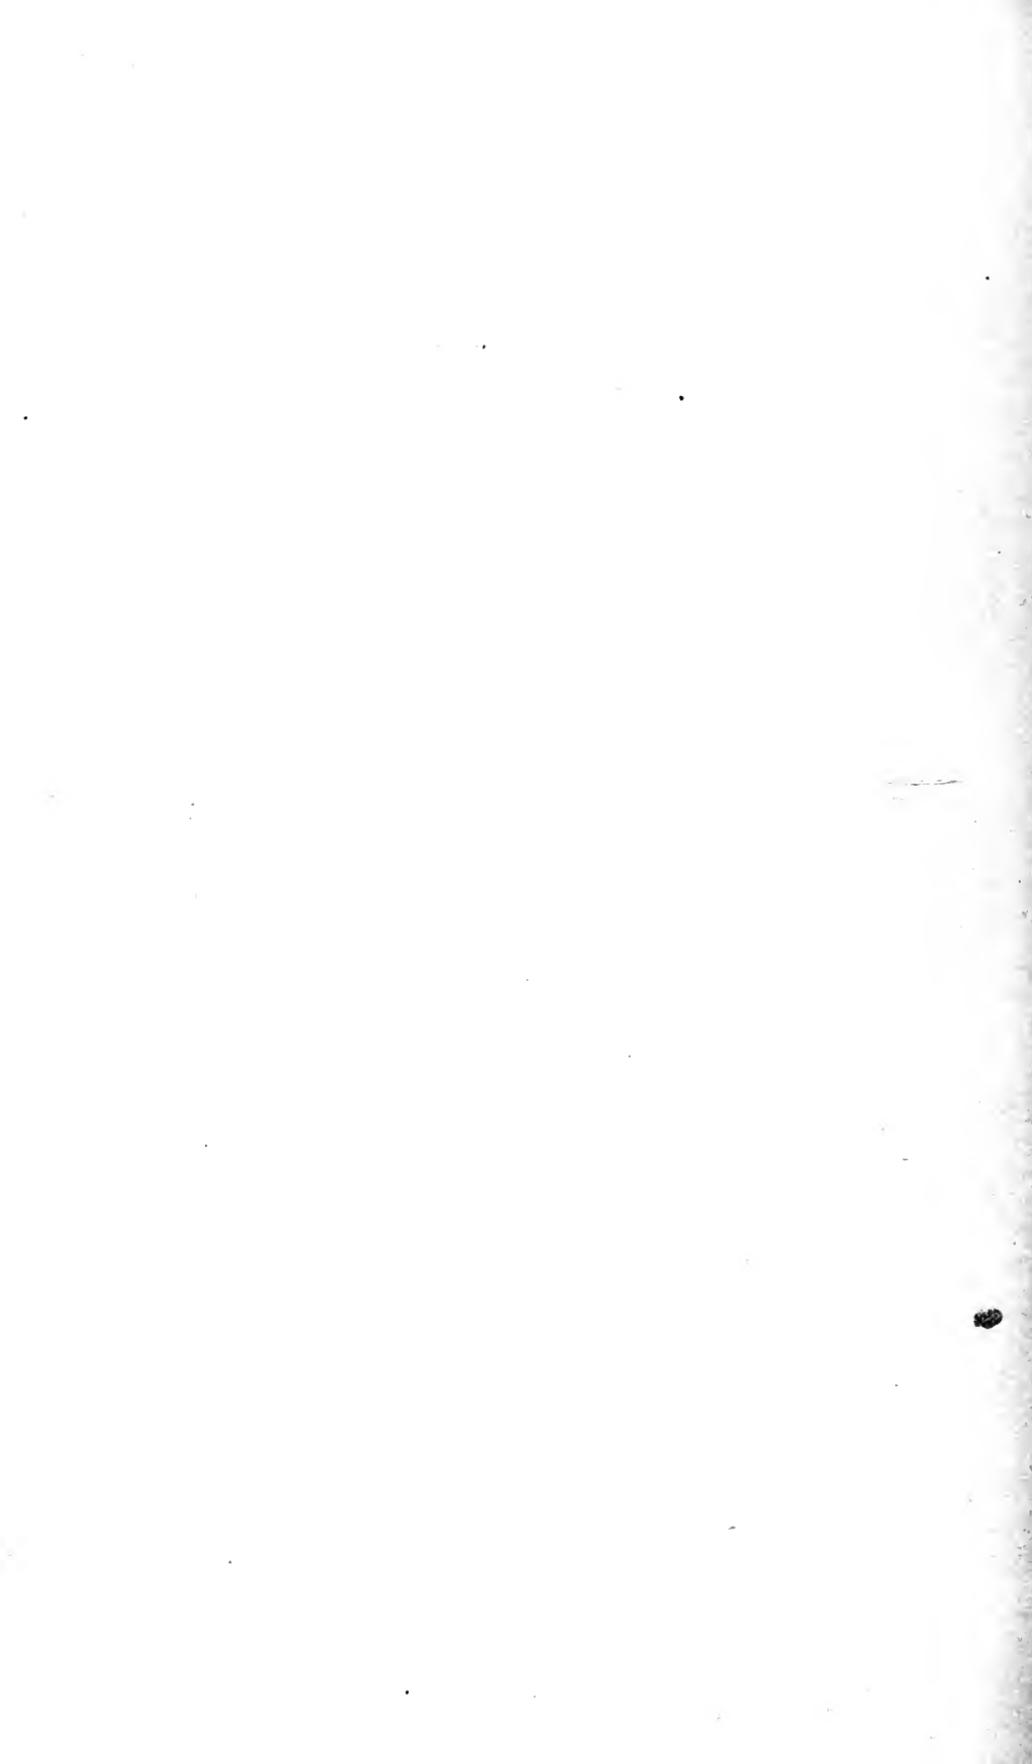

And curb the Kaiser's warring way
By making Europe free
Of kings with military sway,
So we can R. I. P.

You'll meet some who love the Kaisers—
Who'll try their best to switch
You to line up with traitors—
Tell such to G. T. H.

June 15, 1917

Lest We Forget

Death

I am the relentless foe of Life,
I strike true to the Mark,
And must fulfill my measured strife
Allotted by the Stork.

They slander me that say I Grin
'Pon war's bloody battles:
Have I, forsooth, more lives to win
When empty scabbards rattle?

'Tis then I heroes make of all
Who dare to challenge Me,
And heroes know that some must fall
To set the living free

They often die that live in fear,
So bravely fear renounce,
For your reward,—though I come near—
You'll live—and die but once.

July 2, 1917

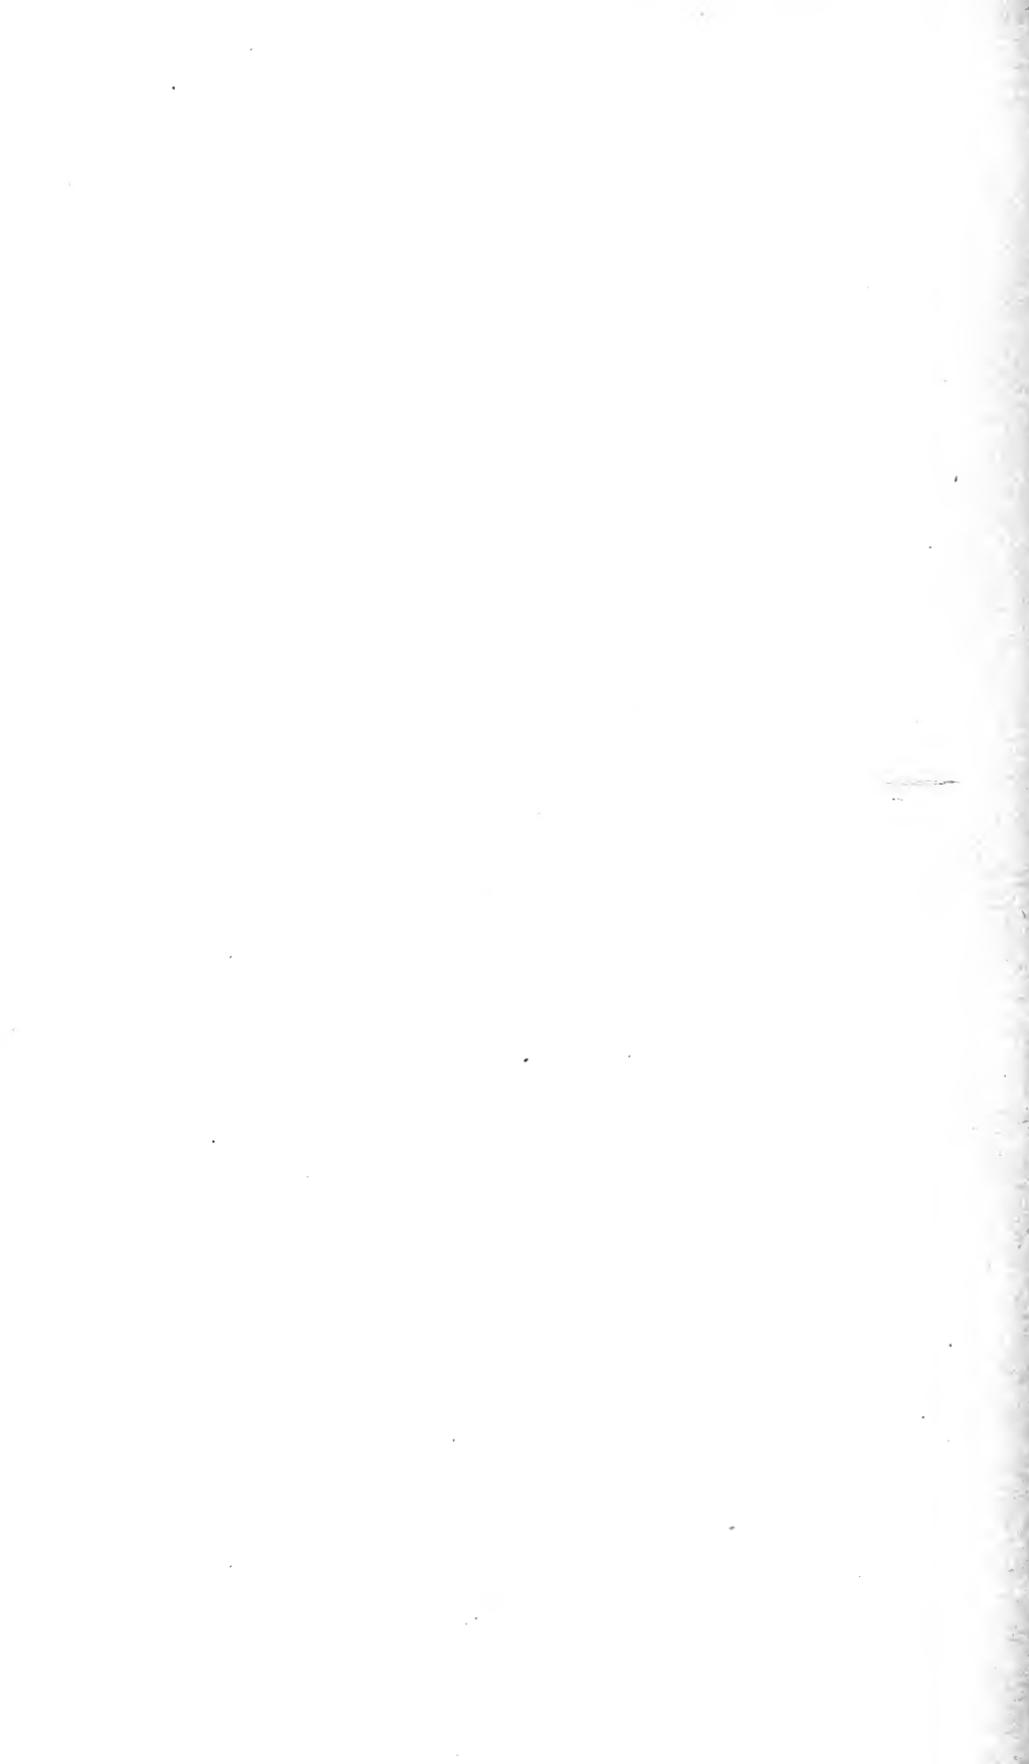

Glory to U. S. Arms

“Vive les enfant de L’Amerique”,
That never met defeat—
The Atlantic and Pacific
They’ll free before they quit.
They salted England’s breakfast tea,
While dressed in Indian style,
Then fought as bravely to be free
As Greeks at Thermopyle.
Rolled up Mexico’s Tortillos,
Then took Chapultepec,
And lately drove Villistos
From Texas to Tepic.
They beat Spain in Fandango
Upon Manila Bay,
And another at Santiago—
Sent Spaniards home to stay,
Soon on the Rhine they’ll fish for trout,
But when they get a smell
Of old Limburger and Sauerkraut, They’ll give the Rebel Yell.
Then lay the Prussians low and flat
In spite of Cannon balls,
And bat that Hohenzollern Brat
’Till Papa Kaiser falls.

July 10th, 1917.

A Forceful Speaker

Triple Alliance

WHEREAS, Democracy, defender of Peace, Justice and Humanity, is threatening the fall of the Hohenzollern Dynasty, and the death rate is so low that Charon will be compelled to cease ferrying the Dead across the Styx: and

WHEREAS, His Satanic Majesty, Asmodeus, King of the Devils, complains that there are too many sacred buildings dedicated to the saving of souls, his kingdom does not now receive its due proportion of lost souls;

NOW THEREFORE, in order to remedy the foregoing evils, His Imperial Majesty, Kaiser Wilhelm II, His Satanic Majesty, Asmodeus, and Grim Death have appointed Plenipotentiaries: Kaiser Wilhelm II, Gen. Von Moltke, His Satanic Majesty, Asmodeus, Lieutenant Mephistopheles, and Grim Death, Lord High Executioner, Major General Mower, who having communicated to each other their full powers have agreed upon the following Articles;

Article I. His Imperial Majesty Kaiser Wilhelm II is commanded to have his agent at Rome, unlock and open the Gates of the Temple of Janus. And in order to delay the day of Peace, said agent shall cast the keys into the Tiber.

Article II. The slaughter of Democratic

People shall begin within Sixty Days from the date of the Exchanges of Ratifications of this Treaty.

Article III. In order that there shall be more lost Souls, Shooting, Poisoning and Drowning, shall, whenever possible, be done without warning. And no distinction shall be observed between Belligerents and Neutrals, nor as between Men, Women and Children.

Article IV. And His Imperial Majesty Kaiser Wilhelm II agrees with the High Contracting Parties, that he shall spare no Church nor Cathedrals, in any Town or City bombarded by his Artillery.

In faith whereof the Plenipotentiaries have signed this Treaty and thereunto affixed their Seals. Done at Berlin, the 8th day of May, 1914.

Signed, GEN. VON MOLTKE.

Signed, LIEUTENANT MEPHISTOPHELES.

Signed, MAJOR GENERAL MOWER.

Ratifications Exchanged at the Third Station of Hell, June 5th, Anno Diabolo 1.

Ratified by Death May 25, 1914.

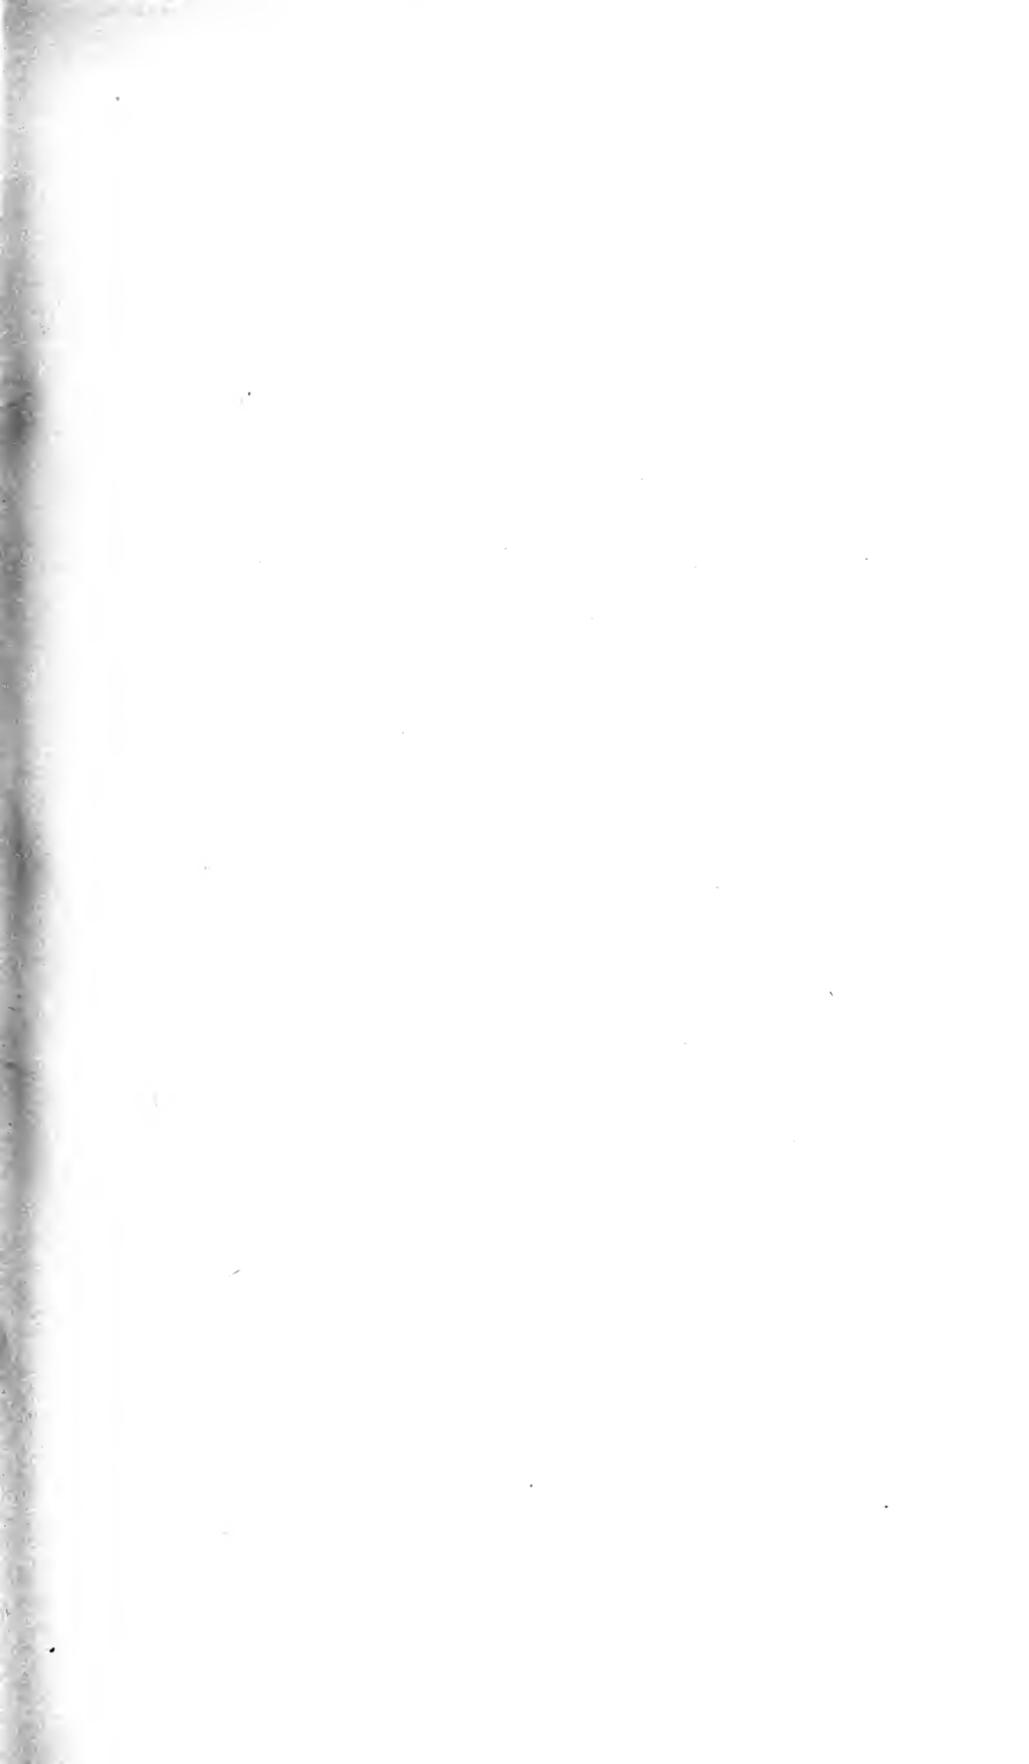

Ratification Advised by the Military Vons, May 27th, 1914.

Ratified by Wilhelm II May 31st, 1914.

Ratification advised by the Devils May 27th, 1914.

Ratified by Asmodeus, Rex Diaboles June 1st, Anno Diabolo I, old style, Nov., 15 1914.

Date of writing, Feb. 20, 1915.

The Witches of Bielefeld

W. G. Woodbury

The Witches of Bielefeld

PLACE: Teutoberg Wald, near Detmold, Germany, near a cave with a large oaken door.
Raining, thunder and lightning.

Dramatis Personae

WILHELM II—Emperor of Germany, von Falkenstaff—Chief of Staff von Cow von Bellows von der Goat von Hinderbugs
} Generals of the Emperor's
High Command
Three Messengers
First Witch
Second Witch
Recorder for the Witches
Nymph

Apparitions

Hannibal, Julius Caesar, Arminius, Philip II of Spain, Charles XII of Sweden, Napoleon Bonaparte, George Washington and Pope Pius X.

WILHELM—Go, von Bellows, knock on yon door and demand admittance. (The Emperor and his staff dismount and tie their horses to a small tree.)

VON BELLOWS (knocking)—By command of his Majesty, I demand admittance.

1st. WITCH—We heed no commands nor demands from those who seek our favors or advice.

WILHELM—I come for neither but wish to see and hear the Spirits of the Dead. 'Tis reported that you have the power to conjure them so mortal eyes and ears can see and hear them.

1st. WITCH—'Tis not permitted to grant your request before the midnight hour so await the time without.

WILHELM—Must we stand here three long hours in this rain?

1st. WITCH—Aye, aye and short the time. Remember Henry IV awaited the pleasure of a Pope for three days before the Gates of Canossa.

VON BELLOWS—Sire, I like not that Witch's reference to your illustrious predecessor, let us away to Detmold.

VON FALKENSTAFF—Your Majesty, allow us to force the door?

VON DER GOAT (whispering to Hindersbugs)—And teach that Hag some manners.

WILHELM—Silence, heir steh Ich; Ich kann nicht anders, for I must see and hear the Spirits from the Dead.

1st. WITCH—Sire, whilst you await the time disarm, take off all insignia of militarism for such will not be permitted within the cave.

VON HINDERBUGS—Gott in Himmel, must we go in naked?

VON COW—I fear a trap, what say your Majesty?

WILHELM—Disarm and place helmets, coats, swords and spurs at the foot of the royal oak tree. (Points to a large oak tree near the door of the cave. All now disarm and pile their accoutrements as ordered by the Emperor. The storm seems to abate. The Emperor and his attendants impatiently wait for the midnight hour, when, without warning, a thunder bolt strikes the royal oak accompanied by a terrific peel of thunder, which reverberates from hill to hill then came a deadly silence. It had ceased to rain and through a rift in the parting clouds a moonbeam shines directly upon the shattered oak. All that is left of their accoutrements is a smoldering heap. Their coats, helmets, medals, swords and spurs have melted away.)

VON COW—Jesus! Look Sire, an ill omen. (He points to and wildly gazes upon the burning coats.)

VON BELLOWS—God has straffed our swords and Iron Crosses. Let us away Sire and be damned to the Witches of Bielefeld, I say.

WILHELM—I have a mind to—but wait, here comes Von der Goat. Let's hear what he has to say.

VON DER GOAT—Your Majesty, I regret to inform you that our horses, frightened by the terrible thunderbolt, have broken loose and are not to be seen.

WILHELM—Why, then, must we stay this thing out. Von Cow go back to Detmold and bring back to us six fresh chargers or three autos.

VON COW (saluting)—Yes, sire. (Exit von Cow.)

(The storm has passed away and the full moon, now near the meridian, informs the party that the midnight hour is near. The cave door is now opened.)

1st. WITCH—I am commanded by my mistress to bid you enter. Follow me. (All enter the interior of the cave in semi-darkness. The Witch takes her visitors before five seats, hewn out of stone and placed in a half circle.)

2nd. WITCH—(Who is unseen) Welcome to your Majesty and to your attendents. Be seated and be silent. (All sit down in the stone seats, the Emperor in the center).

1st. WITCH—Sire, whom do you wish to see?

WILHELM—As many as 'twill please you to call forth. Here is the list. (hands paper to Witch).

1st. WITCH—(Reading from list) "Hannibal, Julius Caesar, Arminius, Philip II of Spain, Charles XII of Sweden, Frederick the Great, Napoleon Bonaparte and George Washington." Truly, a goodly list of Immortals. Here, you invisible Nymph, take this list to our Mistress. (The paper wafts away to the astonishment of the Emperor and the members of his staff).

2nd. WITCH—I have sent the list to our hearty ferryman, Charon, with instructions for him to ferry over the River Styx the Spirits your Majesty has called for. While we await their coming our Recorder will take down the names of our visitors as I call them out: Wilhelm II, von Hindenburg, von Falkenstaff, von Cow and von Bellows. The Spirits that are sent for are: Hannibal, Julius Caesar, Arminius, Philip II of Spain, Charles XII of Sweden, Frederick the Great, Napoleon Bonaparte and George Washington.

NYMPH—Oh! Mistress, the hoary Ferryman calls attention to the payment of the fare.

2nd. WITCH—Pardon me Sire, but I must call your attention to the rule that Charon must be paid for his services for ferrying the Spirits of the dead.

WILHELM—What are his charges?

2nd. WITCH—Three Obolus per passenger, Sire, forty-eight pennies, all told, including return trip.

WILHELM—Here are two marks. (Hands 1st. Witch coins.)

1st. WITCH—Here, thou invisible Nymph, take these to your Mistress.

VON BELLOWS—Sire this smacks of grafting on the dead.

WILHELM—I do not think so, geschaeft ist geschaeft.

2nd. WITCH—Sire, Charon has refused to accept your coins.

WILHELM—Why?

2nd. WITCH—Because your Majesty's superscription is stamped thereon. However, he will take them at half their face value, so you will have to pay double the amount, two Marks more Sire.

WILHELM—Here. (Hands 1st Witch two Marks and whispers to Von Bellows.) Now I believe it is a graft.

VON BELLOWS—I sincerely hope that your Majesty will receive the full value of those four Marks, but I doubt it.

VON DER GOAT—If I had my way I'd buy four sticks of dynamite with those four Marks and use them to blow up this infernal cave, then we would get value received.

VON HINDERBUGS—I for one don't begrudge those four Marks that your Majesty gave to Charon.

WILHELM—Wherefore, Von Hinderbugs?

VON HINDERBUGS—Because for three years past we have succeeded in keeping Charon pretty busy, and now your Majesty is making him work overtime, therefore he is entitled to double pay.

Nymph—Oh, Mistress, the Spirits have arrived and are in the waiting chamber, at your orders.

2nd. WITCH—'Tis well. Call each in the order as written on our register. Proceed.

1st. WITCH—Oh, Spirit of the Immortal son of Hamilcar, come forth! (Instantly a circular light appears at the further end of the cave not unlike, in size and brightness, the rising full moon. Then appears Hannibal holding in his outstretched hands the decapitated head of his brother Hadrusbal.)

HANNIBAL—Oh, Wilhelm, Emperor of the Germanic race that thou hast betrayed, beware of Italy, 'gainst whom I strove for sixteen years! Behold the result of the Metaurus—then came Zama. This gastly trophy my just reward for my invasion. Profit by my example and 'bove all beware Democracy. (Spirit of Hannibal departs, the Emperor is deeply agitated).

VON HINDERBUGS—I pray your Majesty will pay no heed to the vaporings of that African.

WILHELM—I like not his allusions to the battles of the Metaurus and Zama.

VON HINDERBUGS—Why, Sire?

WILHELM—Because the Metaurus was decisive 'gainst that African and so the Marne has proven so to me. Now as Zama proved the end of Hannibal's career so Zeebrugge may be the end of all my dreams to rule the world. I fear the letters 'M' and 'Z' for, as you know, Zeebrugge is our last stand.

1st. WITCH—I will now, by his deserved name, call for Arminius, "Liberator haud dubie Germanie," come unto our presence. (the spirit of Arminius walks into the center of the circle, bow and arrow in his hands fixed for flight, which he threateningly aims at the Emperor.)

ARMINIUS—With such weapons I vanquished the Roman Legions under Varus and made the Great Augustus cry out in despair; "Oh, Varus, give me back my Legions!" But you have caused the German people to cry out in anguish: "Oh, Wilhelm, give us back our slaughtered Sons." Resign, let others save the Fatherland that I have freed, Adieu. (Arminius retires).

WILHELM—Oh, Spirit of the Great Herman—

1st. WITCH—Sire, the Spirits of the Dead brook no questioning. I will now conjure Philip II of Spain: Thou son and successor of the great Emperor Charles V please appear. (Philip comes holding a Crucifix in his right hand and a broken anchor in his left hand.)

Hannibal

PHILIP II—Guillermo, beware of England, the defender of Belgium, whose spirit of Democracy I sought to crush, through and by the ruthless and bloody brutality of Alva, and thereby disgraced my glorious reign. Then I attempted to wrest from Albion the supremacy of the sea and this (holds up the anchor) was my reward for my contemplated invasion. Beware 'bove all of my illustrious Sire's Native Land. Follow his example, bastante. (Philip walks away holding the Crucifix before his face).

WILHELM—That anchor is surely a relic of the Invincible Armada.

VON BELLOWS—Ture, Sire, but what significance is there to his saying, "Beware the native land of my Illustrious Sire"? Spain is not at war 'gainst us, or, is she, Sire?

WILHELM—No. He refers to Belgium, for at Ghent did Emperor Charles V first see the light of day.

VON FALKENSTAFF—Then, Sire, if you should follow his example that would mean for you to—

VON DER GOAT—We'll say it, 'Abdicate.'

VON HINDERBUGS—We cannot stand for that, for then what would become of us. To hell with that Spaniard's advice, I say!

1st. WITCH—We will now call upon Julius Caesar. Oh, he whom the Immortal Bard well named "The foremost man of all the world," please us with thy presence. (The clatter of horses' hoofs and the rumbling noise of Chariot wheels is heard. Two horses' heads appear inside the circle and stop. Caesar is now seen to come in front in the center of the circle, holding a scroll in his right hand and a cloak on his left arm, on the scroll are seen these words: "To the Roman Senate. Veni, Vidi, Vici, Caius Julius Caesar")

JULIUS CAESAR—I warn you, Wilhelm II, you who now misrule the brave Germanic race, to beware of the Belgians, the bravest of the brave of all the Gauls. Cast off your crown; a bauble which I thrice refused upon the Lupercal. Invaders receive their just reward. This I received as mine upon the Ides of March. (Caesar puts on the cloak which is pierced by dagger holes, with as many bloody spots. The horses advance and as the Chariot passes Caesar jumps in and drives away.)

VON DER GOAT—That's poor consolation the Dago gave you Sire.

WILHELM—Truly, I expected he would say more than he did.

VON COW—They say he dared to cross the Rubicon. I believe now that he is a daredevil, the way he rubbed it in on your Majesty, and I do not see, Sire, how you expected him to say more.

WILHELM—Well, he in life admitted that he could not subdue our enemy, England, so I did expect him to refer to it.

1st. WITCH—We will now call upon Charles XII. Oh, you mad-cap King of Sweden, let us see and hear thee. (Immediately Charles appears brandishing a sword, with which he parries at the Emperor as he speaks.)

CHARLES XII—Wilhelm, 'tis not long since you boasted that once more Russia is trembling under the blows of your army. I also made her tremble for three years, but came Pultowa. Then for three years, I trembled for my life amongst the treacherous Turks. Now, Wilhelm, in truth, I'm sick and tired to hear you say "Gott strafe England", do a little strafing yourself, and do it NOW, or you will lose your crown. Look a little out for that Uncle Sam, for sure he'll get your Goat. (Charles XII abruptly leaves the circle.)

VON DER GOAT—I wonder if that square head refers to me?

WILHELM—I believe so, and hope so, for I can well spare you.

VON HINDERBUGS—Pay no attention to the souwegian, Sire, for the Turks are still with us.

VON COW—What I would like to know, Sire, is the United States at war against us?

WILHELM—I don't believe so. We will ask Micheales when we get back to Berlin, but even if—

1st. WITCH—Your Majesty, time is short and we will now call upon Frederick the Great, so come forward, you who withstood the onslaught of Russia, France and Austria and by your victories laid the foundation for a German Empire. (A few minutes pass in silence).

2nd. WITCH—Frederick the Great absolutely refuses to see or speak to the present Emperor, whose ruthless and brutal acts have stained and defamed the once fair name of Germany.

WILHELM—Entreat him, I beseech you.

1st. WITCH—No, Sire, it would be useless, so we will pass on and call for Napoleon Bonaparte. So, come you, spirit of the bold Corsican. (Bonaparte comes into the circle dressed as a Field Marshall of France. He holds a book in his hand. On the cover is the title; "Code Napoleon.")

NAPOLEON BONAPARTE—I salute you as Wilhelm, the Hun—the title posterity will bestow upon you. Your abdication is now devoutly wished for by the whole world. Beware of England. She is the Nemesis of all or any who trample upon Belgium. 'Gainst Albion I fought for sixteen years and when I crossed the Belgian line I met my Waterloo, my second abdication and St. Helena. Above all, beware of the U. S., Fare well, Oh Hun! (He bows and leaves).

VON BELLOWS—Your Majesty, that is the second time the Spirits mention the Americans. Now, tell me, Sire, are they at war 'gainst us?

WILHELM—My dear bellowing Bellows, pay no attention to that Corsican upstart and self crowned emperor of the French.

Falkenstaff Napoleon—Belgium N. B. Nota Bene, Sire.

1st. WITCH—We will now invite into our presence he who was "First in Peace, First in War and First in the hearts of his country men!" Oh, thou illustrious and immortal defender of Democracy we beg the honor of your presence. (Instantly seven bright red bands seem to unroll from the upper edge of the circle and the five spaces between the bands of red become white with stars of golden hue. Washington appears in plain civilian dress holding a parchment in his hands which he partly unrolls and holds to the view of the Emperor, who sees the following words "Declaration of Independence—United States of America—We hold these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal—Life, Liberty and pursuit of Happiness—."

GEORGE WASHINGTON—From time immemorial ambitious men acquired the power to rule by the sword or by the mitre. Like a pendulum that power swung from Emperors or Kings to Popes or Bishops, then back from the mitre to the sword. The pendulum still swings, but its oscillations now, happily for mankind, are controled by democracy. You, Wilhelm, seek to rule by the sword and cannon, and sac-religiously proclaim that you are God's vice gerent on the earth, that you seek to conquer. My beloved country, being, as of right it should be, the invincible defender of Democracy, has declared your brutal and ruthless acts against her commerce and against the lives of her citizens as acts of war. You willed it and you shall rue it. Farewell. (As Washington slowly walks away a white dove with an olive branch in its beak follows him, flying in a circle. The stars go out one by one and the red bands roll up. The white light grows dimmer and darkness again replaces the outer space of the circle.)

VON DER GOAT—Now, Your Majesty must admit that the Americans are at war against us!

WILHELM—Yes, but I do not fear that rebel's country. Our submarines will attend to those that dare to cross the Atlantic. What say you, Hinderbugs?

VON HINDERBUGS—I am of the same opinion, Sire, moreover, I can give you my assurance that I will hold on to the Western line, even if I do have to take it back with me to the Rhine.

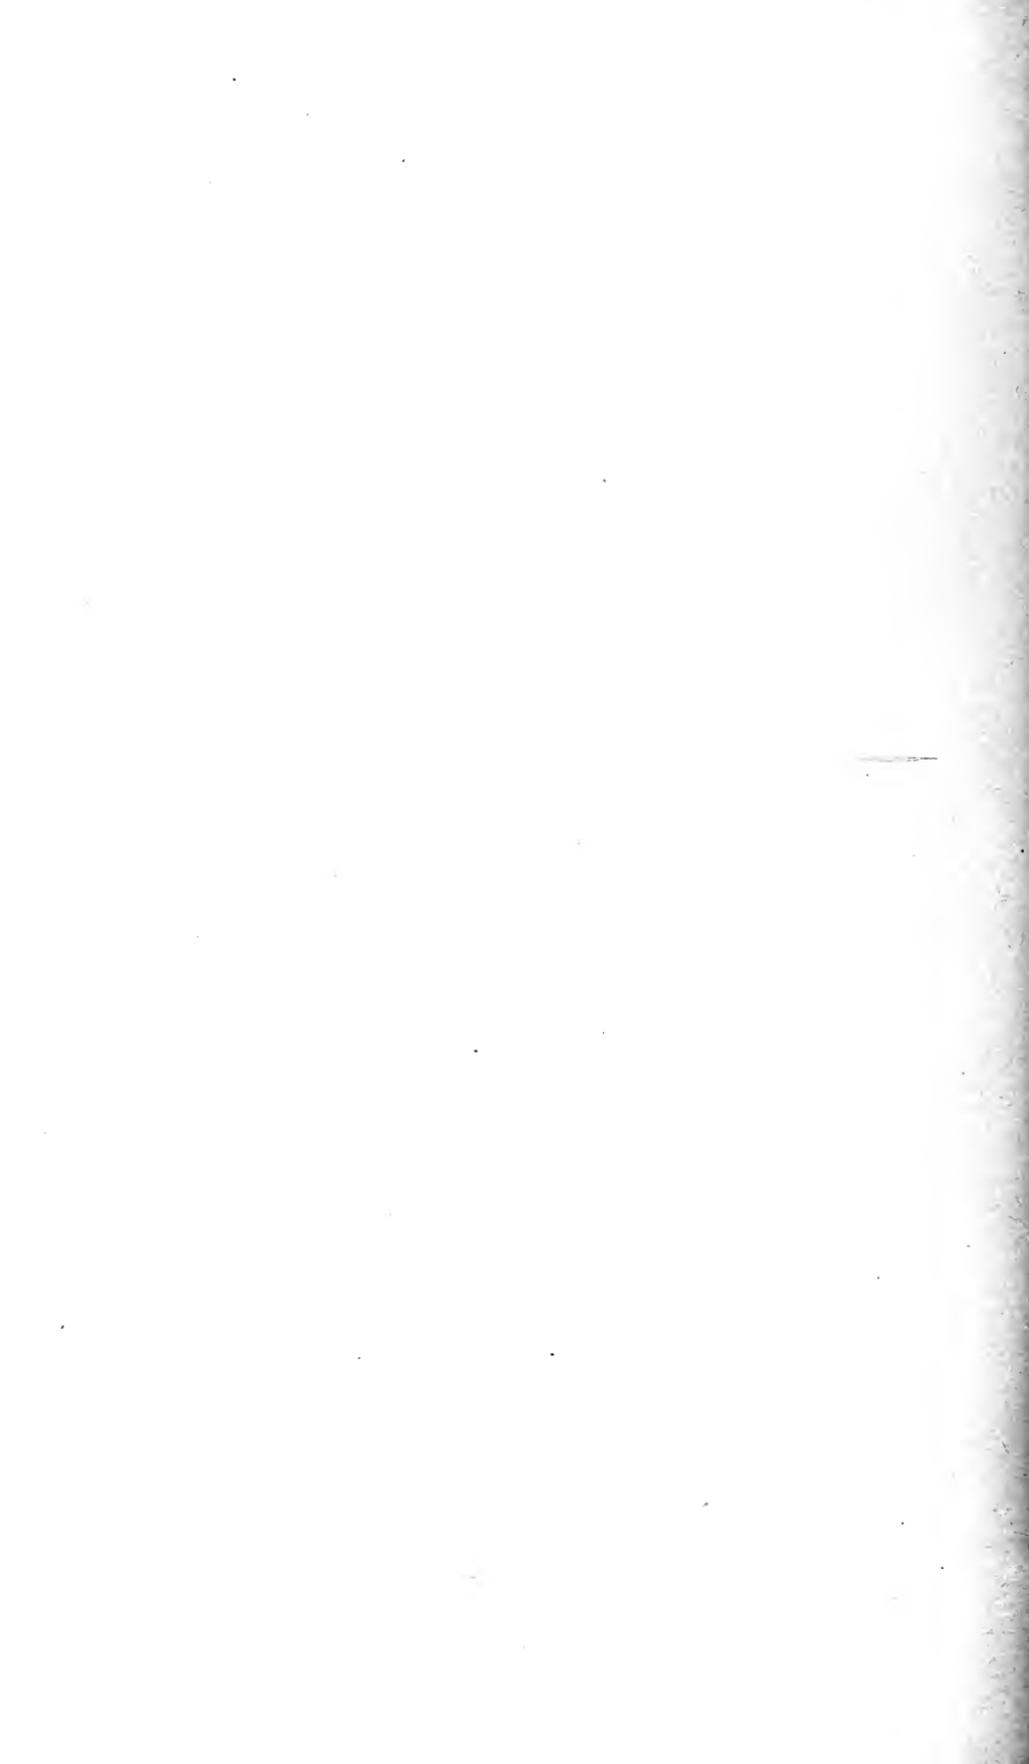

VON DER GOAT—I'm not afraid 'bout our Western line but I don't like the letter G.

VON FALKENSTAFF—Why, are you superstitious?

VON DER GOAT—No, not so foolish as to be superstitious, Falkenstaff, but I figured it out so: We cannot defeat that G. of England, and yet that rebel G., he to a finish strafed a G. of this same England. Ergo! How can we beat the G. that easily whipped a G. we can't defeat?

Invincible and Unafraid

WILHELM—Silence, you fool, or there will be a G. in G. who'll face a Firing Squad.

VON DER GOAT—Whom mean you Sire?

WILHELM—Der Goat of Germany, dunce head.

1st. WITCH—Your Majesty, our conjurgations are over and—

2nd. WITCH—One moment, and listen, Sire, when Charon had crossed the Styx he found upon his arrival here one spirit more than your Majesty had sent for. We still have time. Will you see and hear this spirit whom Charon in his message to me calls a stowaway?

WILHELM—Who is he, and what was his name and rank?

2nd. WITCH—His name, Guiseppe Sarto, his rank a Pope, lately deceased, Pius X.

WILHELM—May I consult with my Staff upon the matter?

1st. WITCH—You may, Sire, but be brief.

WILHELM—What say you, Von Der Goat, shall we see this Pius X?

VON DER GOAT—Your Majesty, off hand, I say No! For his successor, Benedict, is at present trying out for a peace conference and our enemies say that by subterfuge we decieved

Benedict and prevailed upon him to make this attempt for the sole interest of Germany and Austria. Moreover, they go so far as to say that he butts in, as Pius X now does, to come here, which I firmly believe.

VON BELLOWS—Remember Sire, that this same Pope at the very beginning of this, our glorious and victorious war, and just before his demise addressed our arch enemy, England as the "Master of Justice and Guardian of the Peace," therefore I am of the same opinion as Von Der Goat.

VON HINDERBUGS—I trust your Majesty will not be offended, for I will speak plainly. We are at present in the position of a drowning man and we must grasp even at a straw for aid, so I favor seeing and above all to hear Pius, for if in life he favored our enemies in his talk to us he may inadvertently give us some information of military value.

VON FALKENSTAFF—Sire I fully and unreservedly coincide with Von Hinderbugs.

WILHELM—Well said. We will hear this Pope and we will pay particular attention to all that he will say. Now you—

1st. WITCH—Pardon, Sire, but time is pressing and Charon is becoming impatient. What is your pleasure?

WILHELM—We have decided to hear Pope Pius X.

The Shade of Attila

SHADE OF ATTILA—Wilhelm I see too many women and children among those that you have slain.

WILHELM—Just a military necessity my dear Etzel, besides they're only Belgians.

1st. WITCH—'Tis well, for we must not tarry. You who in life was Patriarch of Venice, by name, Guiseppe Sarto, bless us with thy presence. (A halo of light appears above the circle and within the halo is a large cross. Pius comes into the center of the circle and stops immediately under the halo and cross.)

PIUS—My successor, Benedict XV is at present attempting to have the warring nations agree to a peace conference, but it is premature, because it is the rule of our Holy Catholic Church that no absolution shall be granted to an unrepenting sinner, nor until he has made full restitution to those he has wronged or defrauded. Wilhelm, you boast that you are victorious; you are still defying and outraging all laws of God and man, all of which proves your unrepenting mind. Repentance and restitution go hand in hand, as does absolution and peace. Proclaim the former and Peace will follow as day the night, and "Dominus Vobiscum." (Pius leaves followed by a lamb carrying a cross).

VON DER GOAT—I heard nothing said that was of military value Sire. All Popes are the same to me even after they are dead they will butt in.

VON HINDERBUGS—With your permission, Sire, I shall order the destruction of all Catholic churches while retiring from Belgium and northern France.

WILHELM—Do as you wish, my dear Hinderbugs, but do not let that appear in any of your official orders of the day.

VON BELLOWS—Sire, do you contemplate the evacuation of Belgium and thus follow the advice of Pope Pius X ?

WILHELM—I tell thee, Von Bellows, no Pope, be he dead or alive, will ever make me go to Canossa, but we must be prepared for any eventualities; our army on the western front cannot retreat nor can we retire, for we lack reserves to protect and cover a rearward movement, so the enemy compels me to fight to the last ditch. (Loud knocking is heard).

1st. WITCH—Who is it that dares disturb this meeting?

VON COW—I, General Von Cow, just returned from Detmold with conveyance for his Majesty and the members of his staff, so please inform His Majesty of my arrival.

1st. WITCH—I will. (Shuts door). Your Majesty, General Von Cow has arrived with conveyances for your departure. As our conjurations are ended you and your staff will please leave the cave, as it is not permitted for any one to remain till break of day.

WILHELM—'Tis well, we will depart, but first and last I thank you for bringing up the Spirits of the dead to my view and hearing, but deeply regret that one refused to appear, for which I will not blame any of the Witches of Bielefeld.

1st. WITCH—But your Majesty did see the full number of the Spirits, as was inscribed upon your list, for Frederick the Great was replaced by Pope Pius X.

WILHELM—True, but Popes have no liking for such as I or you.

1st. WITCH—We're well aware of that, your Your Majesty, but we fear them not. (1st. Witch hobbles toward the door, leaning on her staff).

2nd. WITCH—Sire, Charon has ferried over the Styx all those whom you had called, but has refused to take Pius X because he did not pay his fare, so if your Majesty will pay the two fares Charon will preform his duty.

WILHELM—How much are the fares?

2nd. WITCH—Two Obolus, six pennies, U. S. coin, or 12 coins of your Empire, Sire.

WILHELM—And if I refuse what will be the consequences?

2nd. WITCH—Charon will refuse to convey the unhappy shade of Pius X across and it will be doomed to wander restlessly along the shores of Acheron.

WILHELM—I then refuse to contribute one cent. Let his shade be doomed, it is God's strafing for butting in where he was not called. Now, you who can bring back the Spirits of the dead, you can no doubt foretell my future, I pray you to do so.

2nd. WITCH—Sire, I can only warn you to beware of the number Thirteen.

WILHELM—Why Thirteen?

2nd. WITCH—Because your Majesty is commonly called 'Kaiser William,' so beginning with your name of thirteen letters I will name others. When you were crowned the Pope, who then presided at the Vatican, was "Cardinal Pecci" Leo XIII., and he it was who decided against Germany, and awarded the "Caroline Isles" to Spain. Again, when your Majesty dropt your faithful Pilot Bismark, you replaced him with a losing thirteen "Prince Caprivi". And, most disastrous to your ambition to rule the world, Sire, was that thirteen of England, "Sir Edward Grey," who threw Great Britian into the scales 'gainst you. Now comes the most powerful thirteen, and one who overshadows them all, "Woodrow Wilson," backed by that Invincible Flag of Thirteen Stripes, and most ably aided by his chief advisor, "Robert Lansing." They have sent the Stars and Stripes to be unfurled on French soil, there to remain in charge of a fighting 13, John J. Pershing, until your armies are defeated—until the World is assured that no more cannons are "Made in Germany". That is all I will say, and will ask you, Sire, to leave, as day is fast approaching.

Beware of No. 13

WILHELM—I thank you for calling my attention to that, to me, fatal Thirteen. I will add that my greatest obstacle for a peace is that same Thirteen "Strassburg-Metz." Good Bye. (All leave the Cave).

VON COW—Sire, below are three autos, it was impossible to get horses in Detmold. I, however, succeeded in getting new accoutrements. I await your pleasure, Sire.

WILHELM—Well done, Von Cow, Vorwaerts, take the lead and we will leave this accursed place. (All march down the steep and rocky defile.)

VON BELLOWS—When I was a small boy I often was sent to the bakery for a dozen pretzels. The baker always gave me an extra one, which I ate, therefore I never could see any bad luck in number thirteen.

VON DER GOAT—If your Majssty will note, you have succeeded in getting rid of a thirteen.

WILHELM—How and when, Von Der Goat?

VON DER GOAT—Why, when your Majesty refused to pay six pennies to have Charon ferry over Pius X.

WILHELM—How do you make out Pius X a Thirteen?

VON DER GOAT—Well his name was "Giuseppe Sarto," thirteen letters, Sire.

WILHELM—Good, I shall not forget that on my next decoration day, Von Der Goat.

VON COW—I, for one, am not superstitious, but explain to me, Von Der Goat, how is it that a thirteen made a promise to our Emperor, but did not come through with the goods?

WILHELM—Who was that, and what did he promise me, Von Cow?

VON COW—"Von Falkenhayn." He promised you Verdun, Sire.

WILHELM—Enough, the first one who mentions that number to me hereafter, shall be shot. (The party have arrived at the bottom of the hill.)

VON COW—Here are the three autos, Sire, and the three messengers who have come from the battle fronts, and I trust that they bring your Majesty good news. (The three messengers approach the Emperor, salute and each one gives him a large official envelope.)

WILHELM—Turn on the light here so I can read these messages. (The search light of the first auto is turned on and the Emperor reads in an audible voice) "If your Majesty cannot send me reinforcement, then by all means come to the eastern front. I fear that all our plans must be changed, for I fear the inaction of the Russian's more than any of their bayonet charges. Assuring your Majesty of ultimate victory, I remain, etc. General Von Mutt."

(Takes second letter and continues).

"As a supplement to my last advice to your Majesty, I beg to report that the enemy under General Cardorna, had crossed the Isonzo. Emperor Charles will be here to-morrow to enthuse his army to make a stand to save the Peak of San Gabriele, but I fear it is too late, unless your Majesty sends reinforcement at the earliest possible moment. With deep appreciations for your Majesty's favors, I remain at Your Command, General Von Eiselkopf."

(Takes last letter and reads on).

"Sire, General Haig has attacked the Green Crassier, and I fear that Lens will have to be evacuated. I could not communicate with Hinderbugs, as we cannot locate him. He left yesterday on an important mission—I understood it was to confer with your Majesty. The attack upon our trenches was led by the Manitobans, and believe me, Sire, there were many. If Hinderbugs does not return soon, and with reinforcement sufficient to be able to make a successful counter attack, we will have to order a retirement.

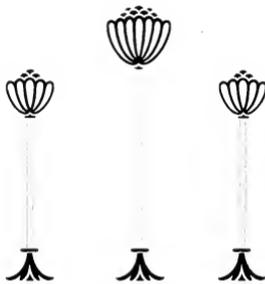

I Sincerely pray for your Majesty's success.

General Von Boob."

(The Emperor now gets busy.)

WILHELM—Here, Von Hinderbugs, take this message, it pertains to you. Take first auto with messenger from your front and go immediately to Lens by way of Warburg; read the message at your leisure on your way. You, Von Bellows, with Von Der Goat and Austrian messenger, take second auto and speed away to Vienna as soon as possible. Here, Falkenstaff, get ready, we go to Berlin, passing through Detmold, and Magdeberg. (For a few minutes all are busily engaged putting on their accoutrements. Enter their respective autos and speed away and exit all.)

Notes

ACROBATIC POEM—J. B. German's Fright is the title. In J. B. German's Fright is contained the initial of the nations at war; also J. B. means John Bull, German's Fright.

ALVA—Fernando Alvarez De Toledo Duke of—Born 1508, was sent into the Netherlands at the head of 10,000 men with unlimited powers for the extirpation of heretics. Alva boasted that in six years he executed 18,000 men and women through and by his "Bloody Tribunal." He was recalled by his bigoted master Philip II, in 1573.

APRIL—Month of War Declaration for the U. S.
War of the Revolution, April 19, 1775
Black Hawk Indian War, April 21 1831
War with Mexico, April 24th, 1846
Civil War, April 12th, 1861.
Spanish-American War, April 21st, 1893.

ARMADA—"The Invincible"—Sailed from Lisbon May 29, 1583. Fleet consisted of 129 large vessels and carried 19,295 soldiers and 8,460 sailors, besides slaves and rowers, and 2,431 cannons. Defeated and destroyed on July 19, 1583, by the English Navy under Admiral Lord Howard, of Effingham.

ARMINIUS—Born 18, B. C. Annihilated the whole Roman army, under Varus, in 9 A. D. This sanguinary battle, which lasted three days, freed the German race from the oppressive Roman yoke. Arminius was assassinated by his own people while trying to quell an internecine strife among the German tribes, in the year 20 A. D.

AUGUSTUS—Roman Emperor, born 63, B. C. In 29, B. C., he closed the Temple of Janus with most pompous ceremony and proclaimed universal peace. In the year 9, A. D., Augustus suffered the one crushing defeat of his reign at the hand of the Germans, led by Arminius. The loss so afflicted the Emperor that he cried in anguish "Oh! Varus give me back my Legions," and allowed his beard and hair to grow as a sign of deep mourning. Died 14, A. D.

BENEDICT—Cardinal Della Chiesa, formerly Archbishop of Bologna. Was elected Pope September, 3, 1914.

BIELEFELD—Town in the Prussian province of West Phalia. First mentioned in the 9th, century as Belanvelde; situate near the western of the Teutoberger-Walde.

BONAPARTE—Napoleon. Born at Ajaccio, August, 15, 1769. Crowned Emperor of the French at Notre Dame, Paris, Pope Pius VII officiating. Napoleon however, took the crown from the Pope's hand and placed it on his own head. Abdicated April 11, 1814.

Battle of Waterloo June 18, 1815. Second abdication June 22, 1815, and was banished to the Island of St. Helena, where he died May, 5, 1821.

BRYAN—William Jennings. Appointed Secretary of State by President Woodrow Wilson March 4, 1913. Resigned June 8, 1915.

CAESAR—Caius Julius. Born 100 B. C. First invasion of England, 55 B. C., whither Caesar was led partly by curiosity and partly by a desire to detach the Celtic Confederacy from Britian, which was the sure asylum of political refugees. In 44 B. C., he refused the crown offered to him by Mark Anthony, and a month later, being the Ides of March was assassinated.

CANOSSA—A ruined castle of north Italy, 12 miles S. W. of Reggio. In its courtyard the Emperor Henry IV stood in penitential garb for three days (Jan. 25-27, 1070) before Pope Gregory VII admitted him to his presence and removed the ban of excommunication. To "Go to Canossa" is the modern phrase for preforming an act of humiliation at the compulsion of another.

CHAPULTEPEC—A castle two miles S. W. of Mexico City, taken by the U. S. troops under Gen. Scott, September, 13 1847.

CHARLES V—Emperor of Germany, King of Spain and the Netherlands. Born at Ghent, Belgium, February 24, 1500. Presided at the Diet of Worms, 1521, to try Martin Luther for heresy. Abdicated, October, 1555.

CHARLES XII—King of Sweden. Born June, 27, 1682. Crowned in 1692. Invaded Russia and Poland. For three years he forced the Russian army to a continual retreat. At last Peter the Great made a stand at Pultowa, July, 9, 1709, and most decisively defeated and destroyed the Swedish army and Charles XII was compelled to escape to Turkey,, where he remained for three years. Meanwhile Sweden was completely crushed by her enemies. Charles returned to Sweden in 1712 and was killed at the siege of Frederickshall December 11, 1718.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE—July, 4 1776.

DETMOLD—Chief town in the principality of Lippe, Germany, situated east side of the Teutoberger-Walde. Three miles S. W. of Detmold stands the colossal statue of Arminius.

EMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION—By Abraham Lincoln, August 22, 1862.

ETZEL—Chief of the Huns, defeated at the battle of Chalons, A. D., 451. Called Attila a ruthless barbarian. He assumed the title of "The Scourge of God." The following will explain why the civilized people call the German soldiers "Huns": When the present Emperor of Germany sent out his punitive expedition to China he addressed his soldiers as follows: "When you encounter the enemy you will defeat him. No quarters shall be given; no prisoners shall be taken. Let all who fall into your hands be at your mercy. Just as the Huns, a thousand years ago, under the leadership of Etzel, gained a reputation by virtue of which they live in historical tradition, so may the name of Germany become known in such manner in China that no Chinaman will ever again even dare to look askance at a German."

FREDERICK THE GREAT—Born January 24, 1712. Crowned King of Prussia. Conducted the "Seven Years War" and at the peace conference at Hubertsburg, February 15, 1763, he not only maintained his territory undiminished, but he had also added a tenfold prestige to Prussia and to Prussian arms. He died August 17, 1786.

HAMILCAR—Barca. The most illustrious of the Carthaginian Generals. Born 270 B. C. He was the father of the "Lion's Blood"—Hannibal, Hadrusbal and Mago. He made his eldest son Hannibal, at the age of nine, swear on the alter of supreme Carthaginian deity eternal hatred and enmity of Rome.

HANNIBAL—Born 247, B. C. Invaded Italy, 218, and his second army of invasion arrived in Italy, led by his brother Hadrusbal, in 207 B. C. Tried to form junction with Hannibal, but was defeated and slain by the Romans under Claudius Nero, who ordered the head of Hadrusbal thrown into the tent of Hannibal. When Hannibal saw his brother's head he exclaimed "Rome will be the mistress of the world." Hannibal died by his own hand by poison in 188, B. C. See Zama.

HENRY IV—Holy Roman Emperor. Born 1050, crowned King of Germany at the age of four, during his father's lifetime. Henry's reign was one of the most troubled in German history. Died 1106.

HERMAN—The German name for Arminius.

HOLLWEG—Von Bethmann, German Chancellor, appointed July 14, 1909. Resigned, July, 14, 1917.

JANUS—Temple of. A Roman god, after whom the month of January was named. His temple was open in war and closed during peace.

LANSING—Robert. Appointed Secretary of State by President Wilson, June, 23, 1915.

LUTHER—MARTIN. The greatest protestant reformer of the 16th century. Born at Eisleben, Germany, 1483. Wrote his defy against the Roman Church and nailed the paper on the door of the church at Wittenberg, October, 29, 1517. At the Diet of Worms, before his Emperor Charles V, and his powerful accusers, he finished his defense with the memorable words: "Heir steh Ich; Ich Kann nicht anders." Was condemned to be burned, but escaped. He died in his native town, February, 17, 546.

MAGNA CHARTA—The Great Charter granted by King John of England to the barons; is the basis of the English constitution. At Runnymede the barons forced their king to sign the Charter on June 19, 1215.

MARNE—River in France. Battle of the Marne September 8, and 9, 1914. At this engagement the Germans were compelled to retire to the Aisne. That battle not only saved France, but it demonstrated that the Germans could not win, for their high tide of invasion had been reached and the ebb had set in. For that reason the battle of the Marne will no doubt take rank as one of the decisive battles of the world.

MEPHISTOPHELES—A devil, and one of the best known personifications of evil.

METARUS—Battle of the. B. C., 207, Claudius Nero and Marcus Livius, combined, by forced marches deceived both Hannibal and Hadrusbal. Annihilated the army of the latter near the banks of the Metauro. See Hannibal.

MORDKESSEL—der German, the kettle of slaughter, the supposed place where Varus fell.

NAPOLEON'S NEMESIS—England, who fought Bonaparte for sixteen years and finally defeated him at Waterloo.

OBOLOS—A small silver coin of Athens, value three cents.

PHILIP II—King of Spain and the Netherlands, son and successor of his father, Charles V. Was born 1527. During his reign he used all the power of the Spanish Inquisition to crush all who opposed his tyranny, but the effect in the low countries was a formidable revolt, which ended in 1579, with the northern part, the Seven United Provinces, achieving Independence. Philip died in 1598.

PETER THE GREAT—Peter I., Alexandreievich, born 1672. In 1703, on May 27, he laid the foundation for a new capital, St Petersburg, now called Petrograd. In his long contest with Sweden the Russians were almost always defeated. He had his revenge at last in totally routing the Swedish King, Charles XII, at Pultowa. Peter died in 1725.

QUATREBRAS—Also written, "Quatre Bras;" was the scene of a British victory over the French, under Marshall Ney, on June 16, 1815, being a part of the Battle of Waterloo.

TEUTOBERGER-WALDE—A forest in Germany, This region still retains the name, "Teutoberger-Walde Teutobergionsis saltus," which it bore in the days of Arminius.

TREATY—Hay-Pauncefote, between the United States and Great Britian, to facilitate the construction of a ship canal. Ratifications exchanged at Washington, February 21, 1902.

TRIPLE ALLIANCE—Entered into by Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy, May 20, 1882. Was renewed in 1891 for a period of 12 years and on June 26, 1902, was again renewed for the same period, terminating in the early part of December, 1912.

TRIPLE ENTENTE—Includes Great Britain, France and Russia, and with the friendship of Italy. The agreement was made between Great Britain and France in 1904 and with Russia in 1907. "The Triple Entente Comprising Great Britain, France and Russia, and the friendliness of Italy, is formed of nations having a common interest and who are friendly toward each other, amounting to a reciprocal regard. Whereas, the Triple Alliance is formed of nations who have nothing in common and who, furthermore, are mortal enemies. It is to be noted in this connection that Germany was the only nation that DID NOT offer condolence in regard to the catastrophe caused by the eruption of Vesuvius." N. Y. World Encyclopedia.

VARUS—Quintilius, Roman general sent by Augustus to command the Roman Legions in Germany, in the year A. D. 7. See Arminius.

VICEGERENT—Having or exercising delegated power. At the outbreak of the present war Emperor Wilhelm II illustrated his spirit of fanatical absolutism by saying to his army:

“Remember that the German people are the chosen of God. On me, as German Emperor, the spirit of God has descended. I am His weapon; His sword; His Vicegerent; woe to the disobedient! Death to cowards and unbelievers!”

WASHINGTON—George. The Father of his Country. Born February 22, 1732. Commander of the Continental army. First president of the United States of America, 1789. Died at Mount Vernon, December 14, 1799.

WILHELM II—Third Emperor of Germany and Ninth King of Prussia. Born at Berlin, January 27, 1859. Succeeded his father, Frederick III, June 15, 1888.

WILSON—Woodrow, the twenty-eighth president of the United States. Born at Staunton, Virginia, Dec. 28, 1856. This “Scholar in Politics” has proven and turned out to be a great man of action. His war Message to Congress, April 2, 1917, stands second to no other state paper in the history of the world. In its importance to mankind it will be placed by posterity with the Magna Charta, Declaration of Independence and Lincoln’s Proclamation of Emancipation.

XERXES—The greatest invador of ancient time. Born 485, B. C. He accompanied his forces on their march through Thrace, Thesaly and Locris; witnessed the battle of Thermopylae and the destruction of his fleet at Salmais. He was murdered by Artabanus in 465, B. C.

ZAMA—Battle of, 201, B. C., where Hannibal was utterly defeated by the Roman army under Scipio Africanus. This memorable decisive battle compelled Carthage to sue for peace.

ZEEBRUGGE—A seaport of Belgium, Province of W. Flanders. Zeebrugge is now held by the Germans and is used as a submarine base.

WAR—Declarations of, previous to the entrance of the United States:

1914

- July 28—Austria vs. Serbia
- Aug. 1—Germany vs. Russia
- Aug. 3—Germany vs. France
- Aug. 4—Germany vs. Belgium
- Aug. 4—*France vs. Germany
- Aug. 4—Great Britain vs. Germany
- Aug. 6—Austria vs. Russia
- Aug. 7—Montenegro vs. Russia
- Aug. 10—France vs. Austria
- Aug. 10—Austria vs. France
- Aug. 12—Great Britain vs. Austria
- Aug. 12—Montenegro vs. Germany
- Aug. 23—Japan vs. Germany
- Aug. 25—Austria vs. Japan
- Aug. 28—Austria vs. Belgium
- Oct. 29—*Turkey vs. Russia
- Nov. 2—Russia vs. Turkey
- Nov. 5—Great Britain vs. Turkey
- Nov. 5—France vs. Turkey
- Nov. 7—Belgium vs. Turkey

Nov. 7—Serbia vs. Turkey
Nov. 10—Montenegro vs. Turkey

1915

May 23—Italy vs. Austria
June 3—San Marino vs. Austria
Aug. 20—Italy vs. Turkey
Oct. 7—Russia vs. Bulgaria
Oct. 14—Bulgaria vs. Serbia
Oct. 14—Great Britain vs. Bulgaria
Oct. 16—Bulgaria vs. Russia
Oct. 16—France vs. Bulgaria
Oct. 18—Italy vs. Bulgaria
Oct. 18—Montenegro vs. Bulgaria

1916

Mar. 9—Germany vs. Portugal
Mar. 10—Portugal vs. Germany
Mar. 16—*Austria vs. Portugal
Aug. 28—Italy vs. Germany
Aug. 28—Rumania vs. Austria
Aug. 28—Germany vs. Rumania
Aug. 30—†Rumania vs. Bulgaria
Aug. 31—Turkey vs. Rumania
Sept. —Bulgaria vs. Rumania

* Began hostilities without formal declaration.

† Ultimatum.

Fifteen Decisive Battles in the History of the World

BATTLE OF MARATHON—B. C. 490. Datis and Araphernes, satraps of King Darius I, with a force of 100,000 men, are utterly put to rout and defeated by the Athenians and the Plataeans under command of Miltiades, who had but 18,000 men.

DEFEAT OF THE ATHENIANS—B. C. 413. At Marathon the Athenians struggled for self-preservation against the invading armies of the East and won a glorious victory. At Syracuse she appears as the ambitious and oppressive invader of others and was ingloriously defeated.

BATTLE OF ARBELA—B. C. 331. Alexander the Great defeats Darius III, Persian invader who escapes from the battle field to Bactria, where he was murdered by his Bactrian Satrap, Bessus.

BATTLE OF THE METAURUS—B. C. 207 (See Notes.)

VICTORY OF ARMINIUS—A. D. 9 (See Notes.)

BATTLE OF CHALONS—A. D. 451. The Roman General Aetius and his Gothic Allies defeat Attila, chief of the Huns, whose savage boast was that grass never grew on a spot where his horse had trodden. This battle took place five miles from the City of Chalons-Sur-Marne and about sixty miles east from the place where was fought the Battle of the Marne, September, 6-7-8, 1914, and being the second Hun defeat on that famous river.

BATTLE OF TOURS—A. D. 732. Charles Martel defeats the Saracens under Abderrahman, who was slain on the field and the Moselm invaders put to flight.

BATTLE OF HASTINGS—A. D. 1066. William of Normandy defeats Harold II of England and by that victory becomes William I of England and surnamed William the Conqueror.

JOAN OF ARC'S VICTORY—A. D. 1429. The French, under the inspiring leadership of Joan of Arc, defeat the English at Orleans and thereby insured the deliverance of France from the English. Joan of Arc was tried before an ecclesiastical Tribunal on the charge of Witchcraft, and on the 30th of May, 1431, she was burned alive in the market place at Rouen.

DEFEAT OF THE SPANISH ARMADA—A. D. 1588.

(See Notes.)

BATTLE OF BLENHEIM—A. D. 1704. Here the ambitious aggression of Louis IV was curbed and decisively defeated by the Allies under John Churchill Duke of Marlborough, who never fought a battle that he did not win, and never besieged a place that he did not take. The Allies were England, Holland, Austria, Prussia and Portugal. After the battle of Blenheim, Ulm, Landau, Treves and Traerbach surrendered to the Allies. Before the close of the year Bavaria submitted to the Emperor and the Hungarians laid down their arms, and Germany was completely delivered from the military power of Louis XIV.

BATTLE OF PULTOWA—A. D. 1709. (See Notes.)

DEFEAT OF BURGOYNE—October 7th, 1777. Being the battle of Saratoga, Revolutionary War. 5,790 men surrendered to General Gates. Burgoyne's regular troops amounted, exclusive of the corps of artillery, to about 7200 men, rank and file, nearly half of these were Germans. He had also an auxiliary force of about 2500 Canadians. He summoned the warriors of several tribes of Indians near the Western lakes to join his army.

BATTLE OF VALMY—September 20, 1792. The French, under Kellerman, defeat the invading Prussian and French noblesse. The latter were to lead the way upon defenseless Paris. On the very day and at the selfsame hour in which the allied forces and the emigrants began to descend from La Lune, to the attack of Valmy, and while the cannonade was opening between the Prussian and revolutionary batteries, the debate in the National Convention at Paris commenced on the proposal to proclaim France a Republic. On the following day the Proclamation making France a Republic was issued and made public.

BATTLE OF WATERLOO—June 18, 1815. Napoleon Bonaparte defeated by the Allies, under the Duke of Wellington. The Allies were England, Prussia, Bavaria, Russia and Austria.

War of the Revolution—April 19, 1775 to April 11, 1783

War With France—July 9, 1798 to Sept. 30, 1800

War With Tripoli—June 10, 1801 to June 4, 1805

Creek Indian War—July 27, 1813 to Aug. 9, 1814

War With Great Britain—June 12, 1812 to Feb. 17, 1815

Seminole Indian War—Nov. 20, 1817 to Oct. 21, 1818

Black Hawk Indian War—April 21, 1831 to Sept. 30, 1832

Florida Indian War—Dec. 23, 1835 to Aug. 14, 1843

War With Mexico—April 24, 1846 to July 4, 1848

Apache, Navajo and Utah War—April 24, 1849 to July 4, 1885

Seminole India War—April 24, 1856 to July 5, 1865

Civil War—April 24, 1861 to April 9, 1865.

Spanish American War—April 21, 1898 to Dec. 10, 1898

War With Germany—April 6, 1917 to _____*

*To the Centennial year of the first Seminole Indian War.

A. W. DAHON, PRESIDENT

CHAS. E. GALACAR, VICE PRESIDENT

W. J. MACKAY, SECRETARY

CASH CAPITAL $ 2,500,000.00

PACIFIC DEPARTMENT
150 SANSOME ST.
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA
GEO. W. DORNIN, MANAGER
JOHN C. DORNIN, ASST MGR

I also purchase 2nd Edition nice the pleased to mail you copy for yourself and one for library of Mrs. I will state that I have not made the first mentioned offer to any one yet except to you and you are at liberty to mention it in any way you may see fit

Very truly yours
Geo. W. Dornin

14 DAY USE
RETURN TO DESK FROM WHICH BORROWED LOAN DEPT.

This book is due on the last date stamped below, or on the date to which renewed. Renewals only:
Tel. No. 642-3405
Renewals may be made 4 days prior to date due.
Renewed books are subject to immediate recall.

DEC 28 1970 83
REC'D LD DEC 12 70 -4 PM 78

LD21A-60m-8,'70
(N8837s10)476-A-32

General Library
University of California
Berkeley

YC 14678

U. C. BERKELEY LIBRARIES

C046643729

352943

Goethals

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA LIBRARY

